

How have the sizes of places in which people with Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities (IDD) live changed?

Proportion of people living in non-family IDD settings

Since 1987, the RISP longitudinal study has provided annual updates on the living arrangements of people with intellectual or developmental disabilities (IDD) who get Medicaid and other long-term supports and services.

Preparation of this presentation was supported, in part, by cooperative agreements (90DN0297, and 90DN0291) from the Administration on Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities, Administration for Children and Families, and a grant (#H133B080005) from the National Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation Research (NIDRR). Grantees undertaking projects under government sponsorship are encouraged to express freely their findings and conclusions. Points of view or opinions do not, therefore necessarily represent official AIDD or NIDRR policy.
